My Correspondence.

Dear Attorney General,

I am in receipt of a dateless letter from your Mr.McGinty who appears to be one of Ms Collins Rice subordinates, though why I should have receive a letter from him rather than her, or as is usual in the circumstances of a complaint at her rank, the Permanent Secretary, I cannot imagine.

I am afraid Mr.McGinty has rather missed the point in fact he has missed quite a few points in his sonorously pompous lecture to me.

All of this ,by now, open correspondence, which no doubt is chortled over by Ms. Collins Rice subordinates in their 'office', from which one hopes they might learn a lesson, simply serves to damage her and her departmental management credibility still further.

It seems, for a second occasion, she is incapable of engaging in simple courtesy and civility in failing to acknowledge my correspondence to her. No more and no less.

The simple point is I supplied information to you in strict confidence and courtesy in those matters which might affect your duties in the future in respect of your prosecutorial role in contempt of court proceedings which may arise.

I did not draw comment neither did I elicit a response. I was flagging up a sensitive issue to you.

Your Mr.McGinty seems to have considerable free time on his hands sufficient it seems to chastise those taxpayers he takes affront at with much of his ill-judged inaccurate comments which are simply wrong in fact and law.

Has he taken over your Ministerial role in this respect?

Search as I may in his carefully constructed letter of avoidance unfortunately I cannot find any reference to the salient points I have made previously and now reiterate:

- Your Ms Collins Rice breached her duty of strict confidentiality to you ; to the Lord Chief Justice; in this matter to a senior member of his judiciary under scrutiny; and to me;
- She has failed to act responsibly by releasing this 'sensitive correspondence' as open correspondence to those below her in rank and thus setting a startlingly poor example in her breaches of the Civil Service Code of Conduct;
- She has failed the normal civility and courtesy expected in a senior member of the Civil Service which is to acknowledge the safe receipt of such correspondence.

Ms Collins Rice has rejected the opportunity I presented her with to correct her errors indeed she now misuses her subordinate staff to continue to defend the indefensible; another unwise managerial decision.

That being so, perhaps you would be kind enough to direct me to your departmental Complaint procedures and failing that how I might proceed in preferring a Complaint of gross misconduct against her under the CSCC.

Your Sincerely,

Divisional Fire Officer (Rtd)
